

Tips for the Caregiver

As a caregiver, you are a key member of your loved one's care team. It is crucial to stay healthy and focused. Here are some tips to help.

Learn what you can about your loved one's disease and what to expect during treatment.

It is important to be up to date on your loved one's care plan so you know enough to ask the right questions. By asking your medical team questions, you can:

- Have a better idea of what to expect during your loved one's treatment journey
- Understand the dosing schedule and potential side effects associated with FOTIVDA[®] (tivozanib)

Get help and care for yourself.

Taking care of yourself will allow you to continue to take care of your loved one. Many communities and independent organizations offer caregiver services such as home care services, transportation assistance, food and nutrition programs, and patient advocacy support. Connect with an AVEO ACE Program Specialist to find out if these services are available to you. Eligibility requirements apply and vary by organization.
